---Lunch Followed by Interesting Talks of Members and Guests.

The first winter meeting of the Newark Board of Trade was held on Tuesday evening at the plant of the Blair Motor Truck Company in West Newark. This meeting had three interesting features. The first was the opportunity of seeing the Blair plant from one end to the other, the second was the excellent lunch served to the hundred or more guests present and the third was the little talks which followed the lunch.

It was a pleasant surprise to the committee in charge of the entertainment when noses were counted and it was found that more than a hundred members and friends responded to the invitations for the banquet.

President Spencer in speaking of this fact, said that early in the evening he felt that the board owed an apology to the members for inviting them to a meeting so far from the center of town on such a night but after hearing the expressions of pleasure at the opportunity of seeing the big plant he had reached the conclusion that such an apology was not necessary.

A large number of automobiles, including the immense Blair truck, which had been equipped with seats for this occasion, were waiting at the Trust building at 5:45 o'clock, to take those to the plant who did not care to use the street cars and then walk the several squares from the nearest stop to the factory.

The big truck accommodated 25 or 30 of the guests and in spite of the bitter wind which was faced all the way to the factory, those guests enjoyed the ride. Almost without exception, those who rode on the truck were surprised at the easy riding of the vehicle which is intended solely for heavy hauling.

The big machine, rides with much less jolting and disagreeable noise than many pleasure cars. It is easily controlled by the driver and responds quickly to the throttles, levers and brakes. The trip to the factory from the square consumed little more than five minutes.

Upon the arrival at the plant, and after most of the guests had assembled, a large party was escorted through the various departments of the factory by various members of the firm. As clearly as possible in the brief space of time allotted to this feature of the entertainment, the attaches of the factory explained the multitude of intricate machines used in the erection of the Blair truck and other machines manufactured at this concern.

It will be remembered that the Newark Machine Company, one of Newark's oldest industrial institutions, took up the proposition to build the trucks and changed the name of the firm to the Blair Motor Truck Company.

The company continues the manufacture of the clover hullers, manure spreaders and other farm machinery which has made it famous the world over. The building of the Blair truck is an additional feature and the fact that this substantial firm took up the proposition to build these trucks, is sufficient indication of the merit of Mr. Blair's idea.

In conducting the visitors through the factory, they were taken through the machine shop, the boiler room, the foundry the blacksmith shop, the woodworking departments, the assembling room, the erecting room, the store room where quantities of the finished product were ready for shipment, and then into the shipping room.

The magnitude of the institution was a big surprise to a large per cent of the guests. Probably all of them knew of the existence of the plant but its isolation from the center of town and the manufacturing district caused them to lose sight of its magnitude.

It was apparent to all that the additional work of manufacturing the auto truck had made necessary the installation of much new machinery. A number of new and intricate machines of the latest model has been installed to manufacture the finely machined parts to the big truck.

After the tour of the factory the guests assembled again in the big shopping room which had been cleared for the occasion. New work benches which had not yet felt the touch of the workman's tools were arranged end to end. It was evident that those who prepared for the banquet realized that the strength of the tables would be taxed by the great quantities of good things to eat, hence the selection of these sturdy work benches for tables. They were heavily laden, but stood the strain nicely.

Caterer, J. S. Kuster, jr., prepared the lunch which consisted of roast beef with dressing, baked beans, sauer kraut and vegetables, sandwiches, coffee, cake, pickles, several kinds of cold meats and cider. For a period of 20 or 30 minutes close attention was given to the menu and after every one's appetite had been satisfied, Col. Wells passed around a box of "Missouri Meerschaums" and a large tin of real Havana leaf. The corn cobs were packed with the fragrant tobacco and over the hall the sound of scratching matches filled the air and the assembly was ready to listen to what the speakers had to say.

President C. H. Spencer called the assembly to order and with an introductory talk, he explained the purpose of the meeting and why it was held at the Blair factory. His talk was a resume of the work done in the past year by the organization of Newark business men and citizens. He first called attention to the fact that the lights had been turned on Tuesday evening for the first time in the huge electric sign on the Trust Building. He pleasantly surprised many of those present when he stated that the sign and the current for its operation were both a gift from the Licking Light and Power Company. He stated that the organization owed a deep debt of gratitude to this enterprising company for its splendid gift to the board.

The president referred to the illumination of the court house dome and stated that through the efforts of George B. Sprague funds were collected to defray the expense of this work and maintain the lights. He called attention to the publication of the book "Greater Newark" and spoke of the great amount of excellent advertising given Newark by this publication. He spoke of the editorials in the newspapers over the state.

Attention was called to the approach of the time for the annual meeting of the organization when a new directorate was to be elected and it was stated that this meeting should be held in December.

Mr. Spencer told of preliminary legislation to acquire the old gas (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2.)

YEGGS BLOW BANK VAULT NEAR CANTON

Canton, Nov. 29.—While the villagers of New Berlin, six miles north of here, slept, yeggmen blew the safe of the New Berlin Banking company and escaped with $900 in cash and a quantity of stamps. To deaden the sound of the explosion the bandits muffled the vault in bundles of rags and carpets. When the door of the bank was opened this morning was the first known of the robbery. An investigation has been commenced.

VERDICT HAS BEEN REACHED BY THE JURY

Denver, Col., November 29.—Mrs. Gertrude Patterson was today acquitted of the murder of her husband, Chas. A. Patterson, with the reading of the sealed verdict.

Denver, Nov. 29.—Although the jury in the case of Gertrude Gibson Patterson charged with the murder of her husband had reached a verdict before noon in the case, Judge Allen was still absent attending the funeral of a friend. Until he arrives the verdict will not become known. When the jury left the court room for breakfast, Mrs. Patterson, who was sitting in her room, rested her face against the window pane and watched the twelve men until they had passed out of sight. She has regained her composure and awaits the verdict with patience.

PRISONER WALTZED WHILE FEIGNING ILLNESS IN PEN

Columbus, O., Nov. 29.—Waltzing today proved the downfall of Edward Shoe, serving a five year sentence in the Ohio penitentiary for burglary from Shelby county. For more than a year Shoe has been confined to the prison hospital, presumably with rheumatism. His condition was such that wardens believed him unable to move. Today he was discovered waltzing about with another prisoner. Simultaneously it was discovered that the "rheumatism" was caused by stings Shoe had tied about his legs to escape work in the shops.

"Reduced to third grade," ironically remarked Warden T. H. E. Jones when Shoe was arraigned before him.

MARITICIDE IS FREED BY JURY

New York, Nov. 29.—Mrs. Frances O'Shaughnessy, who reasoned that to save her unfaithful husband's soul she had to kill him, was cleared by a jury last evening of all blame in slaying him. The jury found that she was insane at the time of the shooting.

Mrs. O'Shaughnessy was led back to the cell after the verdict was returned in accordance with the custom prevailing in insanity cases. Today her counsel and the district attorney will ask alienists if she is now insane and according to their report, the court will give her liberty or order her incarcerated in an asylum.

The woman faced trial with the full expectation of going to the electric chair. When she heard the verdict she fell insensible.

WIDOWS AND ORPHANS TO GET RELIEF FUND

Chicago, Nov. 29.—Widows and orphans of the firemen who lost their lives in the stockyard fire December 22 last, will be given on tomorrow $211,000, the amount raised by subscription shortly after the fire and which has been involved in litigation ever since.

ALLEGES BARGAIN WAS MADE

Retired Banker Says
Roosevelt Made Deal
With Money Kings

SENATIONAL STORY

Told Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce by Wharton Barker.

Washington, Nov. 29.—Wharton Barker, a retired banker of Philadelphia, sprang a sensation on the senate committee on interstate commerce yesterday when he alleged that a New York financier told him in 1904 that the financial interests would support Theodore Roosevelt for president, because Roosevelt had "made a bargain" with them "on the railroad question."

Mr. Barker's statement came in the midst of a vigorous attack on the money trust, in which he alleged also that President Roosevelt had been given the details of the impending panic of 1907 several months before it happened, but took no action to prevent it.

Mr. Barker also declared that the Aldrich currency plan was the handiwork, not of former Senator Aldrich but of Mr. Warburg of the banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. of New York and that a fund of $1,000,000 had been started to insure its adoption.

"Three or four weeks before the election in 1904," said Mr. Barker, "I was walking down Broadway when I met one of the most distinguished money kings in New York, a man now dead. He said to me: 'We are going to elect Roosevelt.' 'I expressed surprise and asked if he had given up his support of Parker. He said yes, that they had frightened Roosevelt so he had made a bargain with them.'"

Members of the committee looked somewhat incredulous and Mr. Barker added: "I wish Mr. Roosevelt were here."

"I wish he were," said Senator Townsend, "it would be interesting." Mr. Barker said the financial giant whom he declined to name, told him that Roosevelt had "made a bargain on the railroad question."

Mr. Barker continued: "He is to holler all he wants to he told me, 'but by and by a railroad bill will be brought in by recommendation of the president cutting off rebates and free passes, which suits us who own the railroads, permitting the railroads to make pooling arrangements and providing for maximum rates.'"

The railroad men added, said Mr. Barker, that under the latter authority it would be possible to add from $300,000,000 to $400,000,000 to the total freight charges paid by the American public.

"I told him I didn't believe Roosevelt had made any such agreement," said Mr. Barker, "but when the annual message of 1905 went to Congress, he recommended most of those things. I wrote to President Roosevelt and told him what I heard, and that I had thought the man lied, but now I believe he had not. It was the only letter of mine Mr. Roosevelt ever failed to answer."

Members of the committee asked Mr. Barker to give the name of the financial man who had told him that Roosevelt was to be elected. "I cannot do it," said Mr. Barker, "but subsequently somebody was alleged to have stolen some correspondence between Mr. Harriman and the president, telling of $250,000 put up for election expenses in the city of New York."

Referring to the panic of 1907, Mr. Barker said that a man who was present at a conference at J. P. Morgan's house in September came to him in Philadelphia and wanted him to use his influence with President Roosevelt to stop a plan that had been mapped out, he alleged, by the financial leaders. This man was a captain in the Rough Riders, he said, and had used his own influence with the president, but without avail.

"The plan," said Mr. Barker, "contemplated the curtailment of loans, the withdrawal of credits, the putting away of money by those interested where they could get it when they needed it to stop the panic and the enforcement of the various state laws (Continued on Page 2, Col. 6.)

FARMERS OPPOSED TO PRIMARY LAW

Columbus, O., Nov. 29.—Farmers of the state do not believe in the present primary election laws. They do not approve of the free distribution of garden seeds and are opposed to the compulsory payment of $40 a month to school teachers. These facts were made known by Secretary of Agriculture Sandles today following the receipt of several thousand letters from farmers during November. Some of the things farmers favor are the initiative and referendum and recall, election of United States senators by the people, parcels post, federal road improvements and other "progressive" measures.

AMERICANS MEET TRAGIC DEATHS IN OTTAWA, CAN.

Ottawa, Nov. 29.—Three Americans met tragic deaths in this vicinity lately. A Bryson, Quebec, was killed by the drowning of Rex Tait of New York and John Harris of Alabama, both aged about twenty. They broke through thin ice when skating. They were employed by their aunt, Mrs. Ella Harris Reader of New York, president of the Calumet Metal Company. The bodies were recovered.

The third tragedy was that of Robert Kehoe, who fell from the steamer Derbyshire when it was passing through the St. Lawrence locks near Cornwall.

MAINE'S NEW SENATOR FAVORS WOODROW WILSON

Cincinnati, Nov. 29.—Senator Obadiah Gardner, of Maine, who is filling the unexpired term in the United States senate of the late Senator Frye and who is visiting at the home of Frederick Wolcott, is a Woodrow Wilson man. According to his view, eastern progressives are not sure of Harmon. Underwood is still an unknown quantity, but Champ Clark or Joseph Folk would run well he believes. Senator Gardner is visiting in Covington on his way home from the National Grange meeting in Columbus.

SYDNEY H. CHAMBERS. SHOT BY AN ITALIAN ON WALNUT STREET

Ball Plowed Through the Liver and Leaving a Gaping Wound

RUSHED TO CITY HOSPITAL BY POLICE PATROL

Shooting Was Result of Quarrel Which is Alleged to Have Started in Well Known Resort--- Would-be Murderer Makes His Escape
But Two Companions are Taken in Tow.

At the City Hospital this afternoon the following statement was made: "Mr. Chambers' condition is much better this afternoon than we expected it to be," though it is not as good as it was this morning. His temperature is good."

Sydney H. Chambers, 30, of 137 East Main street, was shot Tuesday evening on Walnut street by an Italian, supposed to be Joseph Barco, 24 years of age and who is employed in the Hebron gas fields, on a pipe line. Chambers was rushed to the City Hospital and Wednesday afternoon he was reported as resting very well, his condition being quite satisfactory to his attendants.

The story of the shooting and the events leading up to it have not been satisfactorily explained to the police department and those connected with the affair have no desire to give it publicity.

At 7:15 o'clock Tuesday evening a call was received from South Fifth street that a man had been shot and to get there at once. Safety Director Scott, Patrolman George McClure and an Advocate reporter were soon at the place and found Sydney Chambers sitting on a chair almost exhausted from the loss of blood. He gasped: "Call a doctor, quick; I've been shot in the stomach." Just then the patrol came dashing up. Driver William Hinger having made a fast and dangerous run, knowing that a man's life was probably at stake.

Mr. Chambers was placed on the stretcher and taken in the patrol to the City Hospital. Drs. B. F. Barnes, J. G. Shiber and Edward Nehls were in waiting having been summoned by phone. They found Chambers conscious but writhing in agony and at times lapsing into semi-consciousness from the shock of the shooting. Before placing him under the anaesthetic two foreigners were brought into the room for the purpose of having Chambers identify them as those doing the shooting. However, Chambers in a very rational way explained that the men brought in were short in stature and that the person doing the shooting had been tall, but that he recognized having seen one of them saying: "but you were with the fellow who did the shooting."

After the men were taken out Dr. Nehls administered the anaesthetic and the abdomen was opened. The loss of blood sustained was remarkable.

Alliance, Nov. 29.—James L. Harsh, engineer, and Samuel Sommers, were both fatally injured here today in the explosion of a locomotive in the Erie, Alliance and Wheeling railroad yards. Railroad officials are investigating the cause of the explosion.

REBELS SUFFER GREAT LOSS BEFORE GATES OF NANKING

Nanking, Nov. 29.—A concerted attack on the gates of the city by the revolutionists failed and the revolutionaries were driven back with great loss and forced to retire. Lieutenant-General Feng Kwo, commander of the Imperial troops remains full possession of the city. General Li Yuan Heng at Wu Cheng has asked for re-enforcements as the revolutionists are preparing to send a number of men and ships to that city. The revolutionary flags which have been flying in Shanghai and other towns are disappearing.

Hankow, Nov. 29.—The victorious Imperial troops are engaged in one of the most hideous slaughters of the present war. Wu Chang and Han Yang are running red with blood. Hundreds of bodies of the Manchus, the victims, are floating down the Yangtze. Swarms of vultures are hovering over the city, adding to the horror of the scene.

The rebel army, terribly crippled by the several days fighting at Han Yang and Wu Chang, is torn with dissensions, and it is admitted by its leaders that the situation is most critical.

able for the abdomen was filled with great clots of it. After cleaning out the blood it was found that the bullet had penetrated the liver. The shot in entering the right side of the body had made but a small hole, cutting its way cleanly, but the liver was found to be badly torn. The bullet pierced clear through the liver and passed out the body at the spine between the ribs. Its course was straight, as it left the body on the right side. The wound in the liver was so large and ragged that nearly an hour was required in suturing it. And it is this fact that makes the accident seemingly fatal, for the cases are very rare where such a large wound in such an organ as the liver ever heals.

The shock of the shooting, coupled with that of the circumstances surrounding the operation, made the rallying necessarily slow. At 11 o'clock Tuesday night the patient was just beginning to come out of the influence of the anaesthetic and it was thought then that he could live but a few hours.

Wednesday morning the condition of the injured man was exceptionally satisfactory to his attendants, and while the case is critical his condition at the present time is gratifying. Chambers has a good constitution and strong vitality which will mean much in his fight for recovery. Chambers' condition was such Tuesday evening that he was not asked regarding the attempt on his life.

In the meantime a call had come in from box 31 at the corner of Sixth and Walnut and Captain Charles Swank responded, making a hurried trip to the box where he found Officers C. C. Petry and T. H. Stewart with two Italians who had been found badly banged up back of William Bergin's (Continued on Page 9, Col. 4.)

TWO KILLED IN EXPLOSION OF LOCOMOTIVE

Alliance, Nov. 29.—James L. Harsh, engineer, and Samuel Sommers, were both fatally injured here today in the explosion of a locomotive in the Erie, Alliance and Wheeling railroad yards. Railroad officials are investigating the cause of the explosion.

Alliance, Nov. 29.—The German government today ordered 200 troops to proceed to Tien Tsin to guard the European interests. Other re-enforcements will soon be sent to China.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—The United States today offered China the services of 2,500 American troops now stationed in the Philippines to aid in keeping the railroad from Nanking to Peking open to the sea for the protection of foreigners, if the Chinese consul should desire to accept their services.

In the proffer of these troops to the Chinese government it is stipulated by the United States that it is not to be taken as a sign of intervention, but in compliance with the right of this land under the Boxer indemnity treaty to safeguard foreigners.

NATIONAL IRRIGATION CONGRESS WILL GIVE PROMINENT PLACE TO RECLAMATION OF SWAMP LANDS

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 29.—The fact that the nineteenth National Irrigation Congress to be held here December 5 to 9 will give prominent place in its program to the subject of reclamation of swamp lands will result in large attendance by southern and eastern delegates.

The Irrigation Congress in the twenty years of its existence has never been held further east than Lincoln, Nebraska, except when it met in Chicago in 1906. With a large attendance of eastern and southern delegates at the Chicago meeting there might be a movement to take the next Congress into the South or East. There is no doubt that a southern or eastern city might secure the next convention if all the southern and eastern delegates unite in favor of that city and the western delegates divide their forces between five or six western cities desiring the next Congress. Also there is no doubt that if the next congress is held in the south the subject of reclamation through drainage will be the most prominent topic.

Among eastern and southern cities considered as hosts for the Congress in the event it should go east or south are Washington, D. C., New York City, Rochester, Charleston, New Orleans and St. Louis.

Among western cities prominently mentioned for future meetings of the Congress are San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland, Seattle, Missoula, St. Paul, Omaha, Salt Lake City, Denver and Phoenix.

It is freely predicted that the congress at Chicago will be the greatest (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3.)

HOW TO BREAK A SEVERE COLD IN A FEW HOURS

Nothing else that you can take will break your cold or end gripe so promptly as a dose of Pape's Cold Compound every two hours until three consecutive doses are taken. The most miserable headache, dullness, head and nose stuffed up, feverishness, sneezing, running of the nose, sore throat, mucous catarrhal discharges, soreness, stiffness, rheumatism pains and other distress begin to leave after the very first dose. Pape's Cold Compound is the result of three years' research at a cost of more than fifty thousand dollars, and contains no quinine, which we have conclusively demonstrated is not effective in the treatment of colds or gripe. Take this harmless Compound as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine made anywhere else in the world, which will cure your cold or end gripe misery as promptly and without any other assistance or bad after-effects as a 25-cent package of Pape's Cold Compound, which any druggist in the world can supply.

LABORER'S SHOVEL UNEARTHS SKULL

While workmen were engaged in excavating ground at the west side of the old Sixth street cemetery, on Tuesday for the widening of the Wehrle alley, running between West Main street and Church street, they made a ghastly discovery. The shovel of one of the workmen unearthed the skull of a human being that had been buried there for over half a century. The discovery unnerved the workman so that he threw down his shovel and quit work for the day. Further excavation brought to light a number of bones which were placed together, and they will be cared for and properly buried. This was one of the first cemeteries in Newark, and while the remains of hundreds of persons who were buried there were taken up and transferred to the Cedar Hill cemetery, hundreds still remain where they were first buried.

SAGE RESTORES GRAY HAIR TO NATURAL COLOR

The old idea of using sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers used to use dark, glossy hair at the age of seventy-five, while our mothers have white hair before they are fifty. Our grandmothers used to make a "sage tea" and apply it to their hair. The tea made their hair soft and glossy, and gradually restored the natural color.

One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it especially as it had to be made every two or three days, on account of souring quickly. This objection has been overcome, and by asking almost any first class druggist for Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy the public can get a superior preparation of sage, with the admixture of sulphur, another valuable remedy for hair and scalp troubles. Daily use of this preparation will not only quickly restore the color of the hair, but will also stop the hair from falling out and make it grow.

Get a bottle from your druggist today. Use it and see for yourself how quickly dandruff goes and gray hairs vanish.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

FELL TWELVE STORIES AND IS INJURED

New York, Nov. 29.—Ernest Du Pont, aged 25, a rigger, of No. 312 West Twenty-fourth street, fell from a crossbeam on the twelfth floor of a building under construction at No. 341 West Fifth street, to the bottom of a well in the cellar yesterday afternoon. He landed on a stack of empty cement bags.

Fellow workmen went to the cellar expecting to find Du Pont's lifeless form. Instead they found him conscious and squirming around on a pile of cement.

Dr. Critchfield from Flower Hospital, said the rigger's skull was fractured, but at the hospital last night it was said Du Pont would probably recover.

A BRAIN WORKER.

Must Have the Kind of Food That Nourishes Brain.

"I am a literary man whose nervous energy is a great part of my stock in trade, and ordinarily I have little patience with breakfast foods and the extravagant claims made of them. But I cannot withhold my acknowledgement of the debt that I owe to Grape-Nuts food."

"I discovered long ago that the very bulkiness of the ordinary diet was not calculated to give one a clear head, the power of sustained, accurate thinking. I always felt heavy and sluggish in mind as well as body after eating the ordinary meal, which diverted the blood from the brain to the digestive apparatus."

"I tried foods easy of digestion, but found them usually deficient in nutriment. I experimented with many breakfast foods and they, too, proved unsatisfactory till I reached Grape-Nuts. And then the problem was solved."

"Grape-Nuts agreed with me perfectly from the beginning, satisfying my hunger and supplying the nutriment that so many other prepared foods lack."

"I had not been using it very long before I found that I was turning out an unusual quantity and quality of work. Continued use has demonstrated to my entire satisfaction that Grape-Nuts food contains the elements needed by the brain and nervous system of the hard working public writer." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

The Milk-Wagon Habit Madam, See What It Costs You

Mrs. Housewife—

Getting milk from the milkman is simply a habit, and millions of homes have outgrown it. There are hundreds of homes right around you who use nothing but Van Camp's.

Let us show what they gain, and how much you lose. This is a very important question.

Loss No. 1—Purity

Your milkman's milk isn't sterile. There are millions of germs in each drop. Sickness among children, in very large part, is caused by these germs in milk.

You know that. And you know the tendency toward pasteurized milk. That's the only real protection.

Van Camp's Milk is pasteurized. It is utterly sterile. There is not a single germ in a gallon.

Loss No. 2—Quality

Milkman's milk comes from all sorts of dairies, all sorts of cows. Van Camp's comes from model dairies and from Holstein cows.

We have dairies in seven states—each in the heart of a great dairying section. The cows are inspected—all milk is tested. Sanitation is a science in our plants. There is no finer milk in all the world than you get in each can of Van Camp's.

Van Camp Packing Co.
Indianapolis, Ind.

Loss No. 3—Richness

Milkman's milk separates quickly. The butter fat rises and the solids fall. Milk dipped from a can is never whole-milk. When that milk gets to the cooking it is rarely more than a half-milk.

Van Camp's is the whole-milk. The milk fresh from the cow is put into a copper vacuum. There, in moderate heat, we evaporate two-thirds of the water.

The milk as it comes to you is as thick as thick cream. It is 28 per cent solids, 8 per cent butter fat. It is so rich that folks always dilute it, even for coffee and cereals.

In cooking, this milk gives to milk dishes an amazing richness and flavor. Not because of any addition, for we add nothing at all. This is simply the whole, rich milk. But whole, rich milk will surprise you—you who are used to milk wagon milk. A single milk dish made with Van Camp's will forever convert you to the use of this milk. Until then, your neighbors are serving milk dishes twice as good as yours—all because of whole-milk.

Loss No. 4—Convenience

You buy from the milkman from day to day. You always must guess at your needs. When you get too much it's wasted. When you get too little you must go without. Think of the dishes you want, and can't make, because the milk supply is exhausted.

You can buy Van Camp's a month's supply at a time. It is like a cow in the pantry. Have milk and cream, all you want, when you want it. No waste whatever, for the opened can keeps until you use it up.

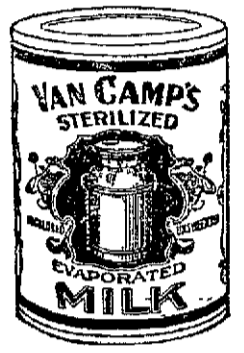

Loss No. 5—Money

The strangest fact is that this premier milk—from high-bred cows, from model dairies—sterile, rich and pure—costs less than milkman's milk.

We save you the cost of the daily delivery. That costs more than the milk. By evaporating the water we save transportation. And we save you all the waste. In the average home the use of Van Camp's cuts milk bills right in two.

Because of these facts, we are now milking 30,000 cows daily to supply the armies of people who are using Van Camp's.

The 16-oz. can—a full pint of Van Camp's—costs 10 cents. The 6-oz. can costs 5 cents. That's with two-thirds the water evaporated. Your grocer gets it direct from our nearest dairy.

AGE OF SPECS IS AT HAND

This is the age of the man with the specs.

Of this there is no doubt. If you do doubt it, the next time you are in a party where there is a fairly representative class of men, just count the noses and then count the spectacles of various kinds which adorn the noses.

You will be surprised at the number of spectacle-wearing men in business and professional life of the home town.

In these days when much of the reading and writing is done in offices where the natural light is poor and the workers are compelled to resort to artificial light, the strain on the eye is too great for its delicate construction and the weakness follows which makes it necessary to use glasses.

At the council chamber Tuesday morning, where the public service commission of Ohio held its hearing on the rate schedule of the local light company, there was a fairly representative class of men.

At one time there were 23 men in the room and a careful count showed that 14 out of the 23 were wearing glasses. Probably more of them had a pretty leather case in their pockets which contained glasses used while reading or at work.

Think of it, more than 50 per cent of a representative class of business and professional men wearing glasses!

Our forefathers, who prided themselves in their keen sight at 50, 60 and 70 years of age, would be astonished now to see the younger generation compelled to resort to the aid of glasses.

BILIOUSNESS, SALLOW SKIN, HEADACHE, SLUGGISH BOWELS---TAKE CASCARETS

You're bilious, you have a throbbing sensation in your head, a bad taste in your mouth, your eyes burn, your skin is yellow with dark rings under your eyes, your lips are parched. No wonder you feel ugly, mean and ill-tempered. Your system is full of bile not properly passed off, and what you need is a cleaning up inside. Don't continue being a bilious nuisance to yourself and those who love you, and don't resort to harsh physics that irritate and injure. Remember, that every disorder of the stomach, liver and intestines can be quickly cured by moving with gentle, thorough Cascarets a 10-cent box will keep you and the entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children--their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing occasionally. Children love to take Cascarets, because they taste good and never gripe or sicken.

One of the most enjoyable and least formal functions in the history of Calvary parish was that given on Tuesday evening of this week in the parish house, by the woman's auxiliary and Epiphany and St. Katherine's guilds.

Tuesday was the tenth anniversary of the marriage of Dean and Mrs. Biller, and that date was chosen as a fitting time for the expression of the affection and esteem in which they are held in the community and of the appreciation of the prospect of their remaining in Sioux Falls.

The parish house was beautifully decorated in bridal colors, white and green. Ropes of smilax were wound

FLOUNCES AND BERTHAS AGAIN DECORATE EVENING GOWNS.

SEEK MURPHY ON A CHARGE OF FORGING CHECK

The police department is looking for John Murphy, aged 55 years, who is accused of forging the name of Frank Bader to a check for $15.

According to a story related to the police by Mrs. Smith of Pearl street, Murphy has been boarding at her home for some time past. While there he borrowed $3 in money and yesterday he tendered a check for $15 made payable to Frank Bader and signed by Frank Bader, indorsed on the back with Murphy's name.

This check, he said was for the amount due for board and money borrowed. When the check was presented for collection it was pronounced a forgery.

Murphy came to Newark several weeks ago with a recommendation signed by a Cincinnati priest. With this character letter he secured employment and board.

An effort will be made to locate him.

Nature.

Not from nature up to nature's God, but down from nature's God look nature through--Robert Montgomery.

IF WE are commonplace and people indifferent, we will find other people indifferent. Mind finds its level, just as water does. A really original and sympathetic person will find others interesting and agreeable. To complain of those we meet is really to admit ourselves dull.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

Fall is the time when peach stains find a home on our best linen. To remove them, wet with water and cover with cream of tartar, then place in the sun, wetting the spots as they dry. Afterward wash and rinse in the regular manner.

The custom with many thrifty housekeepers is to use yellow napkins, which may be used during the fruit season, and stains will not show on them.

When washing glass, slip it sideways into the sink to avoid cracking.

If a new silk skirt is pressed with a hot iron before wearing it will take out the stiffness and the rustle but keep it from cracking.

Cushions filled with excelsior make a good back for softer cushions on the couch.

Dampen a scorched spot, and if it is not really burned, place in the sun, and it will become white again.

Stuffed Spanish Onions.--Peel six even-sized onions and parboil in boiling water until partly done. Drain and remove the centers, and stuff with sausage. Put some slices of bacon in the bottom of a baking dish, put a little of the onion centers and cooked carrot over each and place on this the parboiled onion. Add stock and bake until thoroughly tender.

Instead of using raisins in pudding try a few bits of chocolate ginger. A tablespoonful of a quart of milk will be sufficient to give the pudding a flavor.

Put your hyacinths for winter in their glasses or pots. A October is gone or the bloom will be late.

A nice way to keep cheese when a whole one or large pieces are purchased, is to cover the cut side with paraffin, which can easily be removed when the next piece is cut.

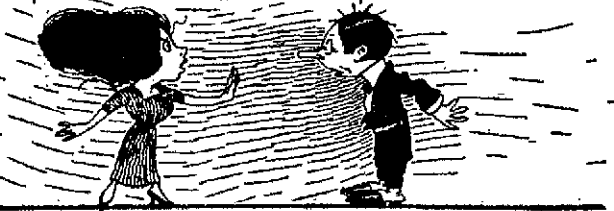

Paper dollies come now in such delicate and beautiful patterns that we may save much wear and tear of hand work by using them where ever possible.

THEN--NOW.

When first I kissed sweet Mildred,
She was really vexed at me.
I still recall her very words--
"Oh please don't stop!" said she.

Again last night I kissed her Now I'm happy as can be.
The same words sounded different--
"Oh please don't stop!" said she.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

How Little Mina Found Her Own Christmas Tree

"TELL us a Christmas tree story tonight, daddy," begged Jack. "If I can," Daddy hesitated. "Of course you can, a nice, clever daddy like you," said Evelyn. "Well, then, I must try. I will begin with a mountain. This mountain was tall, so tall that the pine trees that grew thickly on its sloping sides looked like a green cloak thrown around its shoulders. Below the pine trees stretched the green pastures, where people had built their little cottages and the huts in which they kept their flocks of goats when the cold winter winds blew. And above the fir trees the ice and snow stretched to the mountain top around which the clouds circled.

"One day Ninette, little Mina's pet goat, skipped nimbly over the bank that divided the edge of the pine country from that of snow and ice. "Though Mina called, the goat would not come back. The other goats of the flock were browsing quietly in the pasture and Mina, with a glance to make sure they were all right, hurried after the truant Ninette, whose pink ribbon neck bow fluttered gayly in the wind.

"It was a pretty chase that Ninette led her. Over sand and stones and rocks up into the bleak country beyond the pines. The little girl soon lost sight of the goat. Mina was lost. When twilight came and the snow began to fall, she wandered about, calling to her brother Karl. Karl had been helping to mind the goats, but had not seen her follow Ninette.

"At last she stumbled over something rough and prickly in the darkness. Too tired and worn to get up, she lay where she fell and soon the flakes covered her. She was then snug and warm, for the snow makes a warm blanket. "Comforted by the warmth, she fell asleep and dreamed of a beautiful Christmas tree, covered with shining toys. 'I am your own tree,' the pine seemed to say to her.

"As soon as it was dawn a party of neighbors found the little girl cuddled up against a pine tree in the snowbank. Had it not been for this tree fallen across the path the little girl might have gone on over the steep bank and been killed.

"When Mina told her happy parents of her lovely dream her father said: 'It shall be as you said. You pine was certainly the friend of my little girl when it saved her from that fall. On Christmas day it shall be trimmed with shining gifts for you and Karl as it was in your dream.'

"So the tree stood in their little cottage. On Christmas eve its tiny candles shone cheerfully out on the snow, while Mina and Karl and their little friends danced merrily around it, their Christmas tree."

Fifty Years Ago Today.

The civil war was costing the Federal government $2,000,000 a day.

Interest in the outcome of the seizure of the Confederates Mason and Slidell in a British steamer was keen on both sides of the ocean. In the United States it was assumed that the prisoners would be held by the government. In England people talked of nothing else.

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

Bids were accepted in Washington for construction of the cruiser Baltimore ($1,017,000) and Charleston ($1,325,000). Bids for cruiser Newark were all over the limit of $1,050,000 and were rejected.

Many a woman complains that her husband is getting closer, when, as a matter of fact, she never lets him out of her sight.

wine and flung the contents straight at her. It struck her bare throat and ran down, dismally soaking the child and pale silk of her gown. "Oh!" she gasped.

It was Macnair who acted. He rushed over to the young woman and with one hand began mopping her throat with his napkin, the other, in fist form, he shook under the retreating nose of the beast. "You dirty coward," he muttered, "you big—"

I stepped to Macnair's side. "Put her in a cab and send her home," I said, in a low tone.

His face softened in momentary recognition of me. "But this big slot—" he began.

"Don't talk! Do what I tell you!"

He hesitated, then put his arm through the girl's and led her away, past the staring eyes.

I went home and Macnair's companions also departed, but Macnair himself did not return. I rather expected that the encounter would bring a visit from the boy, but it was not until a week later that he appeared.

"Halloo, Mac," said I, "I'm glad to see you. I've rather expected you'd be turning up."

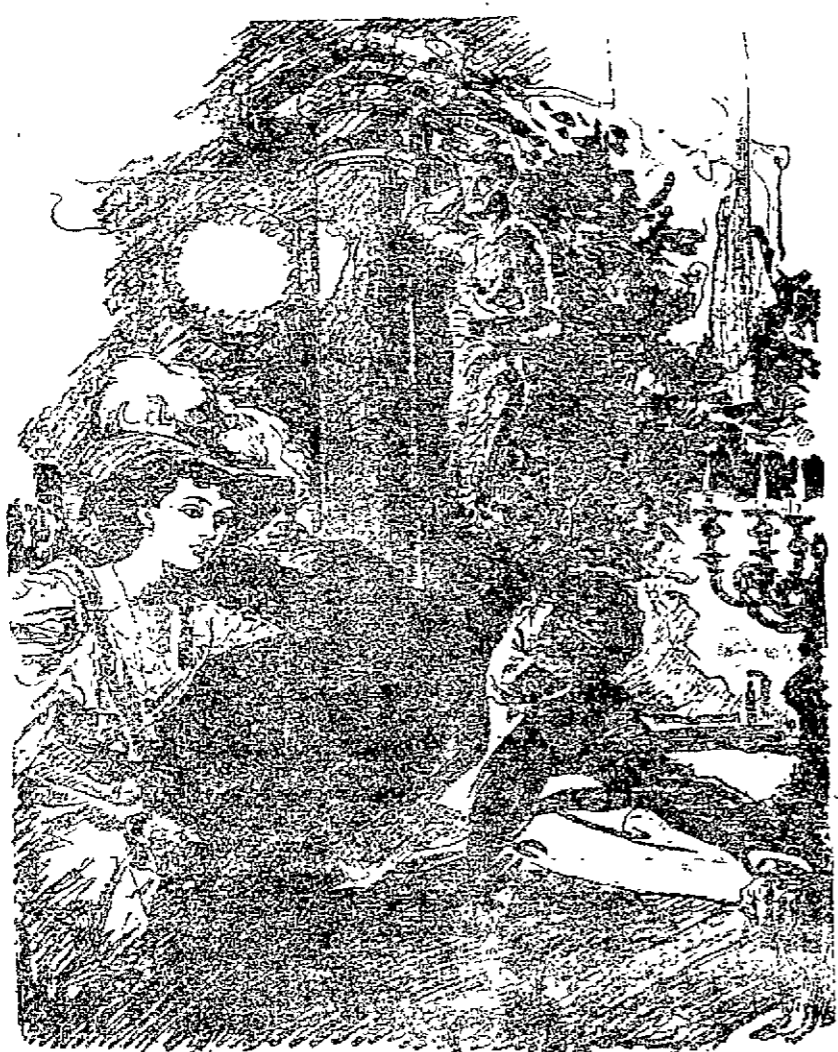

"I'd have been around before, only I've been—" he stumbled over the phrase—"sort of busy."

"Playing knight-errant?"

"That's the name of the ill-treated female?"

"She's on the stage, in 'The Whistling Girl.' That was the manager of the company she was with. She says he's bothered her to death hanging around her. He's a swine all right. Say, it's awful what girls have to take from chaps like that, ain't it? And they stand to lose their jobs if they try to resent it. It makes you sick."

"As you didn't come back that night, I suppose you drove the lady—"

Suddenly she leaned over and touched Macnair on the arm.

"Her name is Helene Beauvoir. She's part French, she says."

"Miss Beauvoir then—home?"

"She was all at the bad in the nerves. I couldn't leave her, could I?"

"Don't you believe she ain't all right," he said, challengingly. "Cause she is."

"My dear chap, I don't know the girl. What should I think of her one way or the other?"

"Well, there's a lot of folks," he went on doggedly, "who think that because a girl is on the stage she is—"

"Oh, nonsense, Mac," I laughed. "Tell me about yourself. How's the art course? And football and baseball?"

He grinned, more like his old self than he had been that day. "I'd hate to tell you about the art course," he replied. "The Prof. has got you stung to death. He talks about it perfectly lovely and you write down what he says in a foolish little book. Oh, it's great! I love art. But I got on the teams, pitched last spring and played end on the eleven this fall. I was the main squeeze. Marlow College tried to get me disqualified because they said I was a professional, but they couldn't prove anything. He laughed reminiscently. "We had some awful good games. Oh, I was the candy rah, rah kid."

"It's vacation now, I take it."

"He gave me a droll look. "College begins again day before yesterday."

"Oh! And—"

"I guess I won't go back. I know enough art now. They are all right, those Ward boys, but it's pretty dull there for me. They seem kind of young. I'm not much on the college end of it. I like the athletics, but the rest— Oh, I don't know. It's too tame for my tastes. I guess I'll stay in New York and get a chance here."

He did not care to pursue the subject, for he rose, lighted a fresh cigarette, and stood about the studio. "What's new?" he asked.

"Got any more prizes? I'd like to see that one of me. Do you mind?"

"No, not at all. What friend?"

"Miss Beauvoir."

"I should be delighted," I soberly replied.

"Toward. So long. Good-by."

Toward the end of January I had a note from him. "If you are going to be in to-morrow," he briefly wrote, "I'd like to bring my friend around to see the studio."

At four they arrived.

"It is Miss Beauvoir, isn't it?" I said, taking her hand, and smiling at Macnair to save him the words of introduction which I saw were sticking embarrassingly in his throat. "It's good of you to come to see the studio."

"I simply love to visit studios!" she returned, with a brilliant accent. "It is too sweet of you to let me come."

"Mac knows the place very well," I laughed. "I suspect he owns part of it."

"He's always kidding," said Macnair laboriously, whereupon Miss Beauvoir filled the room with ripples of pleasant laughter.

"Isn't he the awful boy?" she demanded.

We soon got more at our ease. I took her about the place, pointing out what I thought might most amuse her, and Macnair followed behind, silently. The thing for which Mac had posed I kept until the last. "This will probably interest you as much as anything."

Miss Beauvoir put up her lorgnette to look at the bronze. She encountered Macnair's eyes and giggled. "Mac, I do believe!" she protested. Then they both giggled. "Excuse me, won't you?" she turned to me with an effort of seriousness—"It's perfectly divine I think, but I might as well be frank, I don't think it is quite so nice-looking as Mac."

My laugh dispelled her nervous fear of having offended me. "It was not meant for a portrait," I explained.

"Ah, yes," she murmured, her gaze furtively on Macnair. "Art is so interesting."

When it was evident that we were in the friendliest possible relation to one another, Macnair turned to Miss Beauvoir and said bluntly, "Helene, let's tell him."

"Mac, aren't you dreadful! Well, tell him then."

Macnair grinned. "We got married last night." He reached out for her hand.

"Isn't it too awful that I should have this for a husband?" she demanded, as they were departing.

"What am I going to do with him?"

"I can't imagine," I replied.

It happened to be another year before I saw Macnair again. This was not remarkable, for he was a creature to whom absences and silences meant nothing. One gray, dismal, autumnal afternoon I ran across him in Central Park. He sat on a bench staring indifferently at a little girl, with her nurse, throwing nuts to a squirrel.

"O Mac!" I smiled. "You? Halloo! How are you?"

"Halloo!" he responded listlessly. "Where'd you come from?"

I noticed that he was shabby, shabbier than I had ever seen him. His eyes were lustreless, his face pale and without its usual tan. The note of his whole personality was dejection. On his sleeve a black band accentuated his despondency.

"You have had a loss?" I said, touching the mourning badge. "I'm sorry."

He nodded. "My mother—four months ago."

"I'm very sorry. And your wife?" I went on. "I hope she's all right. I have been away in Europe or I'd have looked you up before this. I—"

Macnair raised his eyes with a gleam of sardonic amusement. "I guess she's all right; I haven't seen her for six months. We've busted. That's all right," he interposed, as I stammered an apology. "You didn't know."

To my suggestion that he walk over to the studio with me, he complied without a sign of interest in the matter one way or another. Once in the studio he slipped down morosely into a chair by the fire and lapsed into silence. We smoked on, the two of us, neither yet at the talking point. Occasionally I shot a glance at him, but never caught his eyes. It was hardly believable that this prematurely experienced young man in the slovenly suit of summer gray had been, until then, the most successful and the most popular of his kind in the city.

"See chuckled me," said he, abruptly. "Said I was lazy and wouldn't work."

"Did you go on the stage?"

"Uh—uh! for a while. Had a little Johnny part, walking on and off and saying, 'Here comes the Duchess, boys!'"

"A flicker of a smile lighted the corners of his mouth. "It was too good for me. I couldn't stand the excitement of putting on a dress suit every night and painting my face and running out gayly, sort of holding hands with a bunch of Lizzie-boys, and then waving my little cane and getting rid of that 'Here comes the Duchess, boys!'"

She was the Duchess, you know. It made me sore to see the fish-faced chump who had to make love to her in the place. One night I punched him with my fist. And boy's eye because he got too gay with her. And she said I was lazy and wouldn't work. After a while the piece went on the road. I ain't seen her since."

"Well, Mac," said I, sympathetically, after a long pause, "what are you doing now?"

"Nothing much. A fellow wanted me to learn to be a chauffeur. It was a good chance. He had a garage and rented automobiles. But after I'd learned the thing burst up. I've been chauffeuring around a little since, but I don't like it much."

I reflected for a moment. "I've been married since I saw you last, Mac, and—"

"Many happy returns of the day," he put in, with a touch of his old impudence. "I'm married myself."

"Well, I don't live in the studio now. We have an apartment outside. There's a bed here and the rest of the things you need. You can stay here if you like. I'd be glad if you'd pose for me, too. I've some work to do and you are pretty well adapted for one of the figures. I don't know what you have been doing and it is none of my business, I suppose. But if I were you I'd take a brace. You're young and sound. Get together, Mac. Will you come?"

"Will I? You won't see me coming for dust," he answered. "You've always been white to me. I don't know why. I'll come and be glad of it. It's a fine chance. I've been a little on the loose lately, but I give you my word I'll pull up sharp."

Unexpectedly Macnair began in his spare moments to return to his earlier amusement of modeling in clay. He was most successful with animals, for which he had a genuine love. One afternoon we were both in the studio, I engaged on some work of my own, and he was putting the finishing touches to a decidedly amusing maquette of a little cur dog he had picked up in the streets and adopted. "It isn't bad, Mac," I commented.

He laughed, but made no other reply. At that moment the bell rang and young Mrs. Granville came in.

"I've been intending to come all winter," she explained in her debonair, enthusiastic voice, cutting short my greetings. "I really wanted to see you work, not to come to one of your manager's teas. So today I happened to be passing and I made the man stop. I hope you're not going to turn me out."

"I'm too delighted," I assured her, following her about the studio in the slight which she immediately began.

Young Mrs. Granville is very well known in New York. She is a patroness of every art, including the art of society. In the midst of it she asked abruptly, in a lowered tone, "Who is that handsome creature over there? A pupil of yours?"

"I cannot characterize him in half a dozen words," I replied. "I'll tell you about him some day."

"What's he doing? May I see?"

We went over to Macnair and I presented him to Mrs. Granville. "It's too dear," she said at once when she had seen his dog. "Do come some day and do my darling little pupette, will you, Mr. Macnair? She's such a love!"

Macnair's pose was undisturbed. He smiled, and I suddenly was aware of the fascination that smile could have for women. "I'd like to very much," he answered readily.

"How perfectly charming of you. Come to-morrow. No, I'm busy then. Come the next day at half after eleven. Can you?"

"Yes, I think so. Thank you."

Mrs. Granville chatted good-naturedly with him a moment longer and then, with a farewell word to me, went away. Her departure left a flatness in the atmosphere, as of a fresh breeze suddenly dying out.

"You seem to have made a home-run with Mrs. Granville."

"She's a wonder, isn't she? I've heard about her," Mac answered.

"I gather you are going into art as a business, Mac."

He winked.

The upshot of the visit of Mrs. Granville was Macnair's sketch of her dog. He showed it to me silently when it was finished. It was clever and had signs of life. With a quizzical smile, I nodded, also in silence. Nothing more was said about the matter. Evidently his acquaintance with Mrs. Granville did not cease with the completion of the sketch. Her footman was occasionally at the door with a note for Mr. Macnair, which I gathered meant luncheon or dinner. I did not question, and Macnair was reticent.

A persistent cold that had laid hold of my wife suddenly decided me to take her to the South, and we set off without delay in the middle of December, leaving Macnair to his pet dogs and the care of the studio. I had intended to pay a visit to Mrs. Granville and find out her conception of him, and also his conception of himself, or at least the conception that he managed to palm off on her and her friends. We had been some six weeks in Florida when a letter came from Macnair. It was of a length unusual for him. It ran:

DEAR FRIEND: By the time you get this letter I shall be on the briny. In fact I'm going abroad—to Paris—to study sculpture. It's this way. Mrs. Granville has got stuck on my stuff and she's got some folks interested and they are going to give me a thousand a year between them to study. It's a peach of a chance for me, and although I know you don't believe I've got a darned artistic thing in me I sort of think I'll foot you one day and show you that your little friend Mac isn't so much of a fathead as you think. I'm mighty grateful to you for all your kindness for you have stood by me and helped me out of a rotten hole this fall. I was pretty much on the bum and I thank you a lot and shall always consider you my best friend. When I get there I'll let you know how things are going in gay Paris.

I've fixed the studio all O. K. and the janitor has the key.

My regards to the missis and regards and thanks to you. So long and don't forget.

Yours very sincerely, Mac.

"No, not since Mac and me were married," she said, frankly. "Lots has happened since then. I've got on I've done awfully well in my profession. Feldman is starring me now, and, well, Feldman is Feldman! Yes, I've hit it off."

"To begin with, I'm a fool," she continued. "Yes, I am. That's why I sent for you. Not that I need advice, or not that I'd take it. My mind is made up. I may as well tell you. I want Mac back. Now what do you think of that?"

"Frankly, I think he'd be much better off being a husband than an artist—or maybe you could combine the two."

She laughed. "He was a husband model once. I can't say he ever was a model husband. No, he's a dear, Mac is, and he needn't work at all if he doesn't want to. I don't mind. I want him back. And I'm going to get him. I came all the way to Paris to do it. I don't know his address, and if I had I wouldn't have written to him. I want to see him. I want to see him, rather, in my good clothes and—well, then we'll see what happens."

I guess I know Mac. That's why I asked you here to-night. I got your address from an art dealer in America and I just wrote to you, even if you are married. Now, can you tell me how I can see Mac, sort of accidentally? Can we do it to-night?"

I watched her for a moment in silence. She was alert, eager, earnest. I was suddenly aware that I liked her exceedingly, that I wanted to help her play out her comedy. "See here," said I at last, "do you want to come with me now, just as you are, to the Boulevard St. Michel, where all sorts and conditions of students and their girls walk or sit about in cafes? Maybe we may find Mac there. I don't know. It is just a chance."

"I'm game," she answered promptly. "Wait till I get a wrap and we'll go."

She was back in a moment and we took a taxicab to the other side of the river.

When I helped her out we began our stroll.

"Look, there he is," she whispered sharply. "Just ahead of us. With the two girls."

She was right. Macnair was just in front, arm in arm with two women. They were in the extreme of hilarity, all three, sniggering along, indulging in good-natured blague at the expense of every type who caught their fancy. Presently they halted at the crowded terrace of the Cafe d'Harcourt. Half a dozen or more of their friends shouted out all sorts of disgraceful and amusing greetings, to which they vivaciously responded as they sat down at a little table.

"We'll go there, too," Macnair's wife said, calmly. "There's a table just behind them. Don't let him see us."

Suddenly she leaned over and touched Macnair on the arm. He turned abruptly and looked straight into her eyes. The red waves tumultuously over his face, into his very hair. For a moment he kept his gaze on her; then his whole face seemed to weaken and collapse. He did not say a word. His wife led her hand rest on his arm. She herself did not speak, but she smiled, smiled rather wonderfully.

"Helene," he stammered at last. "You—"

"You little, little fool," she answered, and her voice was more tender than if she had whispered a love poem. She stood up and put out her hand. "Come along, Mac, I want you."

Macnair rose to his feet abruptly. "All right honey; I'm ready if you are," he said. And they went away together, with only a nod for me.

SYDNEY H. CHAMBERS

place on Walnut street. Captain Swank took charge of the prisoners and ordered the patrolmen back to Bergin's to make an investigation as the Italians, one of whom could speak English, said that they had been beaten up at that place.

Captain Swank waited with the prisoners in a nearby shanty until the patrol could arrive from the hospital where it had taken Chambers. The Italians were rushed at once to the hospital to have them identified, but neither one proved to be the one who had done the shooting, although Chambers identified them as having been with the gun user. The Italians had been badly beaten up and nurses at the hospital washed and dressed their wounds. The men were taken to the city prison and Mr. George Georgetti, the Third street fruit dealer, was called to act as an interpreter in securing their story.

They gave their names as Carlo Cienteirello and Giviana Mendiceno and the following interview occurred, the elder man doing the talking:

"What do you know about the shooting?"

"We didn't have anything to do with the shooting. The police haven't got the right man."

"Can you tell who did the shooting?"

"No, I do not know." (Here the fellow acted as if he knew who the man was that did the shooting, but he doggedly refused to divulge his name.)

"How many were in your party?"

"Two, myself and the other one."

"There must have been another one in your party."

"No, no. Yes, I guess there was."

"Who was the other man?"

"I do not know," said the man, but he finally acknowledged that he did know the name of the third party, and told who it was.

"Is that all you know about the affair?"

"Yes, that is all."

Mr. Georgetti said that he asked the man only a few questions. He said that he was not acquainted with either one of them, but from what he knew of Italian characteristics, it didn't look to him as if the men under arrest were the kind to intentionally get mixed up in a row.

Later one of the men, the smaller of the two, who could talk broken English, "loosened" up and stated that they had gone to Bergin's during the afternoon and had refreshment, that they had mixed with the frequenters of the place and that later they had been insulted by some of the hangers-on and had resented it when suddenly they were attacked and the next thing they knew they were being ejected when one of their companions, John Baroko, a young Italian, aged 24 years, drew a gun and shot into the place several times.

Captain Swank called at Bergin's and the proprietor, William Bergin, told him that he knew nothing of the shooting until after it occurred. He said that he had been in another part of the house. That the men, he understood, had gotten into a quarrel with foreigners of another nationality and had started settling their differences on the outside of his place when one of them ran into the dance hall. Baroko, he was told, opened the side door and began firing with the result that Chambers was hit.

Chambers called on one of the men, Fred McGinnis, to assist him and started to walk to a physician's office. When he got as far as Swartz's feed store on Fifth street, he became so weak that he could go no further and police headquarters was notified.

Captain Swank and Director Scott interviewed Mrs. Martin, who cooks at the Bergin place and lives in the rear at 59 Canal street. Mrs. Martin stated that about 4 o'clock the Italians came to the place and the heavy set one (Cienteirello) came into the kitchen and handed her a gun asking her to keep it for him as he was afraid the police might get him and he did not want to have it on his person if arrested. She said she took the gun and placed it in the cupboard and that at about 5:30 the same man came back and asked her for the gun, which she gave him. She stated that he then left for the dance hall, just off the kitchen where some one was dancing to the music of the big pipe organ. She claimed that she left for home shortly after and was not present while any quarreling was going on.

Captain Swank continued a further investigation and learned that Baroko was seen running through an alley to Canal street. He made a search and found a cap that Baroko had worn. He next located the boarding house frequented by Baroko and learned that the Italian had left there a short time before and secured a second cap and had left, going through an alley towards West Main street, where he evidently caught an interurban car. Hebron was notified to be on the lookout for the fellow as it was thought that he might go there to draw money due him for work. Columbus and other surrounding cities were also notified to be on the watch for the fugitive.

During the night Captain Swank and several officers searched several foreign boarding houses as it was thought possible that the fellow might return but no further trace of him could be secured.

The two Italians at the city prison had return stub tickets to Hebron via the interurban. They will be held pending investigation.

Sydney or "Bid" Chamber, as he was better known has been in the employ of the B. and O. road as a brakeman for some time. A few weeks ago he was laid off owing to lack of work. At one time he was in the city's employ as a lamp trimmer. He had also been employed by the Parish Company and Green Dye works as a driver. He is married, but has no children. His father lives in Cincinnati and has been notified of his son's condition. His mother has been dead for some years.

The gun used in the shooting affair was of 38 calibre and the bullet with which Chambers was shot was found on the stretcher when he was carried into the hospital. It having lodged underneath his coat.

BERGIN PLACE CLOSED.

Wednesday morning Safety Director Fletcher Scott issued an order to close the Bergin place. Chief Charles Hindel called at the Bergin stand and found that it had already been closed. He was informed by the proprietor that business had been discontinued immediately after the trouble. Mr. Bergin stated that the chief could inform Director Scott that his order would be respected and he would look the place up.

A HELPFUL SHAMPOO.
Soaps, because of their "free" Alkali, are harsh and injurious to the scalp, and when used for shampooing rob the scalp of oil necessary to keep it and the hair in a healthy, vigorous state. A very beneficial head-wash can be made by dissolving one teaspoonful eggol in a cup of hot water. This massaged on the scalp relieves irritation, soothes and tones, and after rinsing, the scalp is clean and healthy, while the hair takes on such a silky gloss and softness that doing it up is genuine pleasure. For a quarter you can buy enough eggol at the drugists for a dozen helpful shampoos.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.
P. G.: Face powder is a hindrance, not an assist, to true beauty. Stop using powder for a few days, and each night apply this easy-to-prepare retreating lotion and I am sure you will be delighted with the results: Get from your drugist two ounces amural and dissolve in a pint water, they add one ounce gallol. Take of this one tablespoonful three times a day. The gallol and glands imparting strength and energy, and so enabling them to attain their correct growth and proportions. When this is done, hold the skin in any lines vanish and the form grows plump and beautifully symmetrical.

Mrs. T.: Don't waste time massaging for undeveloped beauty. Local applications cannot get beneath the skin's surface where the fault lies; breaks down local tissues and muscles. Try the Vaucaire treatment, made by dissolving a cupful and a half sugar in a pint water, they add one ounce gallol. Take of this one tablespoonful three times a day. The gallol and glands imparting strength and energy, and so enabling them to attain their correct growth and proportions. When this is done, hold the skin in any lines vanish and the form grows plump and beautifully symmetrical.

TRAIN JUMPS TRACK AMONG THEATRE GOERS

New York, Nov. 29.—Two persons were injured and about 300 others goers hurriedly escaped injury at 5:30 o'clock last night when the express train leaving Boston on the New Haven railroad at noon and due at the Grand Central station at 5:42 jumped the track at the New Rochelle station and tore down the heavy picket fence, throwing splinters twenty feet into the station square. The entire fence 200 feet long, was ripped up. Traffic was delayed for more than three hours.

One handsomely gressed woman who was standing on the platform was struck about the legs and breast by pieces of the fence. She refused to give her name saying she was the wife of an official of the railroad company, and drove off in a taxicab. Anglo Alino, a roofer, living at No. 542 East Nineteenth street, Manhattan, sustained bruises about the legs and body when struck by the section of the fence thrown by the derailed motor. He refused to go to the New Rochelle hospital.

The train, which consisted of two motors, one mail car, one baggage car, four coaches and five parlor cars, with Lambert Fowler as conductor and Henry Kolb of Westchester as motorman was one hour late.

The first motor passed the switch immediately to the east of New Rochelle station, but the second jumped the frog dragging the mail car from the tracks with it. The other cars in which there were 400 passengers remained on the rails, the derailed motor picked up the fence dividing the west bound local and express tracks, as though it were made of paper, throwing the splinters across the station platform. The motors were stopped 100 feet beyond the station.

As the train approached, 200 men women and children who were standing on the platform waiting for the 5:32 local train for New York, saw the motor strike the fence, ran in confusion and escaped being injured.
The injured men and women were at the east end of the platform and backed up against a stone wall, unable to escape the flying pieces of wood. The trucks of the motor and mail car were torn from under, but the occupants were uninjured. A wrecking train cleared the track and the train proceeded with one motor.

GIRL IN BARREL BARED TO CURIOUS BY NAUGHTY WIND

Winsted, Conn., Nov. 29.—Old Boreas simply won't permit an advertisement showing a pretty girl in a barrel which covers her from chest to knees and bearing a sign "Clothes pressed while you wait," to stay covered up.

Objection was taken to the sign on Main street by admirers of Anthony Constock, principles and heavy canvas was spread over the picture and nailed down. But every time a strong wind comes along it rips and tears the canvas until the pretty girl in the barrel is able to get a good peek at the Main street traffic.

BOYS MUST DIE FOR MURDER OF TRUCK FARMER

Chicago, Nov. 29.—Four boys were found guilty of murder in the first degree and sentenced to death and two others were sentenced to life imprisonment by a jury last night for the murder of a truck farmer on the outskirts of the city a month ago.

The four sentenced to death are Ewald and Frank Shiblewski, A.
Phillip Semmerling and Tomas Schultz.

The two sentenced to life imprisonment are Frank Kita and Leo Suchanski, both 16 years old.

None of the four on whom the jury visited the death penalty is of age.
The boys slew and robbed Fred W. Grulow, in spite of his supplication for life, because he had a wife and baby to support. The boys all confessed.

In his final appeal for death penalties Assistant State's Prosecutor Edward S. Day made a unique closing argument for the prosecution.
He consisted solely of excerpts from admissions made by the boys to the police and on the witness stand, without comment.

The story he patched together was in effect as follows:

That Grulow had nearly reached the city with a load of garden produce when the six boys set upon him, armed with two revolvers, two butter knives, a club and a hammer that when he alighted from his wagon he was struck down with the club, and that he pleaded for his life on his knees offering the boys all his possessions, because he had a wife and a baby a month old at home; that the answer of the youths was to beat him into unconsciousness with the club and the hammer.

After the man was unconscious he was stabbed four times in the neck with the butcher knife, the corpse was dragged into a nearby thicket, a club was jammed down the throat and several bullets were fired into the body. The boys were arrested while trying to sell some of the booty.

"GREATER NEWARK"

Mr. F. E. Colson, publisher of Newspaperman (New York), a magazine printed in the interest of and widely circulated among newspaper publishers and editors, writes to the president of the Newark Board of Trade:

"I have been looking through the illustrated booklet of the Newark Board of Trade, and it is a publication which I believe will prove highly beneficial to your municipality. It is one of the best printed booklets I have ever seen of this character.
Ordinarily Boards of Trade are negligent in their lay-out of typography and advertising."

Mr. H. McJohnston, editor of System, the magazine of B. Sines (Chicago) writes: "The Greater Newark Book is extremely strong."

WAS DAUGHTER OF MAN ABDUCTED BY CONFEDERATES

Palmyra, Nov. 29.—Mrs. Sarah Lee, one of the oldest members of a family famous in Missouri civil war history, died here, aged 80. She was a daughter of Andrew Almsman, whose abduction by confederate soldiers brought about the famous Palmyra massacre.
Union officers issued a proclamation that if Almsman was not returned in 10 days 10 confederate soldiers would be shot in retaliation. Almsman was not returned. What became of him remains a mystery. Ten confederate soldiers were taken from prison, seated on pine coffins and shot.

drowned in a ditch near Elmore, and is thought he had fallen into the ditch and was unable to get out.

King has been in this section for some time and is said to have run away from an Indian school.

RHEUMATISM A BIG JOKE

It's so easy to get entirely rid of Rheumatism or gout since the discovery of RHEUMA that people who continue to suffer are surely playing a painful joke on themselves.

It's such a sure thing that RHEUMA will cure Rheumatism that Evans' drug store will refund your money if it doesn't. This is the way it acts on every body.

Port Myers, Fla.—"I was so crippled with Rheumatism that I could scarcely walk. I took one bottle of RHEUMA and was so greatly benefited that I bought four more bottles and after taking them—three months ago—find myself cured."

RHEUMA is a wonder worker.
One hour after the first dose it begins to act on kidneys, liver, bowels and blood, and within a few hours the poisonous uric acid has begun to pass from the system through the natural channels. Bottle for only 30 cents. Mail orders filled, charges prepaid, by Rheuma Co., Buffalo,
New York.

Indigestion, badly upset stomach, easily conquered with ENGLISH age accorded to us by the people of Newark and Licking county and with sincere feeling of gratitude to the Ruler on High for His great and mighty blessings of this fair land during the past year. We close our doors tomorrow to join in celebrating the great holiday of Thanksgiving.

"Ah, fill the cup—what boots it to repent.
How time is slipping underneath our feet.
Unborn TOMORROW, and dead YESTERDAY;
Why fret about them if TODAY be sweet?"

DRY MAYOR OF UHRICHVILLE WARS ON WETS

Prosecutes Liquor Dealers in All the Other Towns of Tuscarawas County.

New Philadelphia, Nov. 29.—Another crusade on alleged speakeasies in Tuscarawas county, the second within three months, was started yesterday by an announcement by J.
Leslie Hillyer, mayor of Uhrichsville, that he had 75 affidavits against persons in Canal Dover, New Philadelphia, Zoar, Strasburg and Mineral City, alleging violation of the Rose Local Option law.

The wholesale raid was started this morning when Sheriff John C.
Polen served warrants on Nick Nigro, and his daughter, Teresa, and Vincenzo Zuecha in Canal Dover, and Alice Rooney, Ella Swinehart, Thos.
Huff and Henry Ergenhauf in New Philadelphia.

The second raid followed the collection of evidence by W. G. Stough and Charles T. Johnson and John and Charles Schneider, 21, who have been working under the direction of Charles T. Johnson and Lewis O.
Haug, of Canal Dover.

BEAL ELECTION TODAY.

East Liverpool, O., Nov. 29.—
Whether or not saloons will be returned to East Liverpool and Wells-ville for a period of at least two years will be determined by Beal law elections today. Characterized by the apparent inactivity of both forces to the issue, the campaign in the two cities closed last night. Judging from indications, a comparatively small vote will be cast. Efforts of both organizations in the two cities will be concentrated in getting out a null vote. Compared with the Rose county option fight of Nov. 3, the interest is slight.

DRYS PREPARE FOR CAMPAIGN.

Marysville, Nov. 29.—The rumor that the wets in Union county purpose to circulate a petition for an election under the Rose law has aroused the temperance forces in every precinct in the county. A meeting was held in the courthouse yesterday to arrange for a vigorous campaign against the wets. A county executive committee was appointed and follows to have charge of the dry forces during the campaign. J. M.
Peel, Marysville; L. H. Southard,
York; Dr. B. E. Baker, Milford Center; Will Bonnette, New Dover, and Will Hudson, Plain City.

WET PETITION IS FILED.

Canal Dover, Nov. 29.—A petition for a wet and dry election was filed here yesterday. It bore 5852 signatures, though but 1200 were required. Tuscarawas county voted dry in November, 1908, putting 97 saloons out of business.

WETS ASK ELECTION.

Steubenville, Nov. 29.—The Business Men's League of Jefferson county yesterday filed a petition for a local option election bearing 5562 names. Three years ago the county went dry by a majority of 1800.

VILLAGE GOES WET.

South Bloomfield, Nov. 29.—Voting under the Beal law, this village decided to put in saloons. The wets cast 51 votes and the drys 11. The village heretofore has been dry.

FLY SWATTERS CLAIM BEER IS THE BEST BAIT

Cleveland, Nov. 29.—"The best bait on earth for flies is beer. Bread and butter comes second, but beer attracts four times as many."
This is the statement of Dr. C. E.
Ford, secretary of the city health board, who has just received reports from 36 normal training school girls, who formed a fly swatting club last summer under his direction, to investigate the fly. Over 1,000,000 flies were swatted in the crusade that followed, the highest record for one girl for one day being 2500.

After a careful comparison of the reports made by the girls as to the most favorable conditions for trapping flies, Dr. Ford says that beer is the best bait on earth.
